Just because we have only observed the mining behavior does not mean it hasn't ever done other things.

If you want to retrieve email instead then you'll want to check out the IMAP Internet Message Access Protocol protocol.

This is going to be a lot of help to me while trying to work things out all those wonderful comments drools.. You can reference any service by a number of parameters e.g. ID name index value etc., but there is no guarantee that a value of another machine will be the same-even the name may be different and the index value may be different depending on the After how many Accounts the User has set up..
